Objectives and Responsibilities of the Editorial Board

Peer Review: This is an integral part of being an Editorial Board member and is essential for spreading the mission of the Bulletin. Editorial Board members will be expected to:

- Recruit potential contributors for BSTS
- Review at least 2 manuscripts per year
- Identify additional reviewers for BSTS
- Provide for content where appropriate

Journal Ambassadors: Board members should act as ambassadors for the journal, sourcing potential authors and readers, as well as potential subscribers in their region. They can also encourage their students and colleagues to read and cite the journal.

Requirements

Advanced degrees in appropriate areas of focus for BSTS; record of scholarly achievement through publications and research reports; fluent in English.

Editorial Strategy Advisors: Board members can be a huge source of inspiration and advice and in the development of the journal. To that end, Board members will be asked to participate in at least one annual Board Teleconference, to provide input into the future strategy of the journal, considering such topics as:

- What do they see as the direction for the journal? Is it meeting the needs of the scholarly community?
- Competitor comparisons—what are they doing well?
- Ideas and innovations—what is the future of scholarly publishing?
- What is working? What is not?

To submit your application, please send an email that includes your letter of interest, CV, and areas of interest to the Editor, Jeff Will, at jwill@unf.edu.
